THE BORDEN STORIES UNTRUE: THE BOSTON "GLOBE" OFFERS AN APOLOGY TO THE SLANDERED WOMAN.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 11.—The feeling has changed in regard to the Borden case, and the defendant's counsel is receiving encouraging telegrams from all sections condemning the alleged disclosures in the case and urging him to continue suing for Miss Borden.

The three local papers express editorial opinions of a similar character and call upon the State to get rid of its hired detectives. Directions to bring libel suits have been given to Mr. Jennings of counsel for the defense.

The Boston 'Globe' publishes an editorial apology for its publication of the statements in the case. It says:

The 'Globe' feels it is a plain duty, as an honest newspaper, to state that it has been grievously misled in the Lizzie Borden case. It published on Monday a communication from a presumably reliable source. Among all the impositions which newspapers have suffered, this was the most astonishingly and irresponsibly plausible.

"Judging from what we have heard, it is poetical justice that it did the most damage.

"This remarkable, incriminating, and cunningly-conceived 'dirt' is undoubtedly based on fact, for opposition will show. The 'Globe' believes, however, that much of it is false and never should have been published."

The 'Globe', being thus misled, has innocently helped to give the case the notoriety it had. So far as lies in our power to repair the wrong, we are anxious to do so, and hereby tender our heartfelt apologies to the innkeeper, and his memory as a woman and for any injustice the publication of Monday's statement may have caused. The same sincere apology is hereby tendered to John V. Morse and any other persons to whom the publication did an injustice.

For Detective McHenry there is nothing but the greatest hatred expressed, more particularly in police circles, where his name is not so well welcomed. Nightly night he reports are making efforts to learn his previous record in detail, with a view to carrying out the suggestion hinted by the Daily News, which is substantially as follows:

"We simply ask that his part in the case be gone over by honest men who have never been strangers to the police force as Government witnesses. His misstatements and falsehoods have no place and no right before court or jury."

City Marshal Hilliard appeared at the Central Station this afternoon for about twenty minutes. The officer had had no opportunity to read the papers and did not desire to be quoted at this time. He had been playing the case previous to this, and had no warm personal friendship for him, as was stated in the early reports.

In most quarters to-night it is felt that the whole story, including the apology, tends to weaken the Grand Jury's case. There is no doubt now that the prosecution fears difficulty in obtaining an unprejudiced Grand Jury. Friends of the family are much startled by the amplified apology and the prominence given to it by other papers, but they have not yet recovered from their anger, which was so publicly manifest last night and this morning.

Mr. Morse still urges his counsel to sue the offending papers. He is expected to go to court this afternoon for Boston, and it was generally understood that he had with him material for serving a writ of attachment.

Officers Harrington and Medley, Capt. Desmond, and Officers Doherty and Seaver are still at work on the Borden case, but they have been busy with anything which was suggested in Monday morning's story. Much has been said here this afternoon and the number of local papers and local official officers have been disclosing facts in possession of Government authorities, but these reports do not bear heavily on the case.

As a general statement, the police say they have found nothing in the cases which would be as important or convincing as the charges contained in the alleged affidavits. They say, however, that many weak points in the evidence already known to the Grand Jury are fortified, and before the Grand Jury meets they will have a strong case on the lines laid down by them when the arrest of Miss Borden was decided upon.
